

[Photograph by Gideon Lewin]

A PORTRAIT OF

Jane

Mother, actress, author, philanthropist, entrepreneur, complementary medicine activist, clothing designer . . .

more than a classic

beauty, Jane Seymour

is a classic Renaissance woman. In her new book

Making Yourself at Home,

Seymour offers an intimate peek inside

Coral Canyon, her Malibu beach house, where yet another incarnation of her personality is revealed:

Jane Seymour the Artist.

By Patrick Dougherty

Wielding her paintbrush, Jane Seymour the Artist creates a vibrant, colorful world that only begins on stretched canvas. As she channels her passion into brushstrokes, Seymour realizes art's transcendental power: Her colors leap off the canvas to make the world a brighter, healthier and happier place. On a large scale, Seymour donates her artistic talent to raise money for various good causes; most recently, she completed a painting called Water now being used globally for a new initiative to solve the world's water crisis. With friends, Seymour delights

